Alum to Sing Soprano Role In Messiah

The fifth annual presentation of the "Messiah" under the direction of Dr. Maurits Kesnar will be presented December 10 in Shryock Auditorium at 7:30 p. m., and again in Harrisburg on December 11 at 7:30 p. m.

That famous American singer of radio and concert, Bruce Foote, will perform as bass-baritone soloist. Mr. Foote is professor of voice at the University of Illinois, and is featured on radio station W. G. N. of Chicago. It is thought by many that Mr. Foote is one of the greatest of American singers. He will sing in both the Carbondale and Harrisburg presentations.

Featured tenor soloist of the "Messiah" will be John Tufts of St. Louis. Widely acclaimed for his performance as tenor soloist in Southern's presentation of the Oratorio last year, Tufts was the featured soloist in the second concert of the 1950-51 season by the Southern Illinois Symphony Orchestra in November.

Tufts began his formal training at Drake University under the direction of Herbert Gould. After completing his training at Drake, Tufts studied under Mme. Adelaide Gerscheidt of New York City. He appeared in several New York oratorios, and served as assistant oratorio coach with Charles Baker of New York.

Tufts spent three and one-half years in the Army Air Corps as a flying instructor during the war. Since that time, he has sung solo parts in the "Messiah" on several occasions. He is considered by many to be one of the coming tenors in the American music world.

One of the featured soloists at Harrisburg will be Mrs. Ernestine Cox Taylor, an 1946 alumna of Southern. She will sing the soprano role.

More than 250 persons from all walks of life in Southern Illinois will make up the chorus of this fifth annual presentation of the world famous Oratorio. Rehearsals have been held since early October, and several members of the chorus have been driving 40 and 50 miles each Monday night in order to participate.

Many of the chorus are alumni or students now attending South-

FORTY STUDENTS ENTER U. S. MILITARY SERVICE

Forty Southern students have been attracted, or called, by the United States Armed Forces this term, according to reports released by the Dean of Men, I. Clark Davis.

As of November 7, three men had been drafted and thirteen had been recalled into various Army, Navy, and Marine units. Twenty-four men had enlisted on their own accord to the air force, six to the navy, and eight in the army.

Southern is presently following the credit policy for students entering the military service that was followed at the beginning of World War II. Under this system, a student who enters the armed forces before the first half of the term receives half credit for each course. Those who attend more than half the term receive full credit, with the grade earned at the time of withdrawal.

All fees will be refunded if the student withdraws within the first two weeks of a term for military service.

Robert F. Etheridge, assistant dean of men, was recently appointed Military Service Officer of the University by Dean Davis. The appointment was made as a service to students subject to military duty either through the reserves or through the draft.

Although the general interpretation of the law is the induction of college students is postponed until the end of the school year, providing they are in the upper half of their class, Etheridge said that most draft boards are following their own private policies.

Etheridge explained that he plans to keep in constant touch with the local draft boards throughout the state concerning their draft and deferment policies in order to keep the Southern student fully informed.

Old Catalogs Wanted

Alumni, do you have the 1925 or 1926 school catalog? These catalogs are needed for reference for those people who began their studies at Southern then and who now wish to complete the work for their degrees. Catalogs for the year 1922 and for any year previous are also desired.

If you have one or several catalogs, please notify Douglas E. Lawson, Dean of the College of Education.

S. I. SYMPHONY MAKES DEBUT

The first concert of the 1950-51 season was presented by the Southern Illinois Symphony Orchestra November 19 in the Hermin Township high school and a second concert was presented at the University on November 21.

Composed of musicians in every walk of life throughout Southern Illinois, the Southern Illinois Symphony Orchestra is now in its second season under the direction of Dr. Maurits Kesnar, chairman of the music department.

Dr. Kesnar organized the group in the fall of 1949 to afford talented persons of Southern Illinois a chance to play in a symphony orchestra. Practices are held every Tuesday night, and some of the members drive 100 miles or more in order to participate.

The first concert featured a young tenor, John Tufts, as soloist. Mr. Tufts is a former air corps officer who originally lived in Southern Illinois, but is now located in St. Louis. He has sung in the "Messiah" at Southern in past years, and is considered to be one of the coming tenors in the American music world.

Future concerts will be held throughout Southern Illinois in Cairo, Murphysboro, Mt. Vernon, and other places, the date and the time to be announced later.

Southern Asks $10,606,317 For Next Biennium

The University's proposed budget request of $10,606,317 for operating expenses during the 1951-53 biennium was approved by the Board of Trustees at its regular November meeting.

Included in the total amount requested for the operating budget of the 67th General Assembly are funds to operate the University at its normal rate of growth and additional funds that will be needed to maintain the more recently established programs. The budget for buildings has not been prepared as yet.

"As a result of past help of the General Assembly and the Governor of Illinois," Dr. Delyte W. Morris, University president, declared, "Southern is making definite progress toward establishing a well-rounded program of instruction, research, and area service. The purposes behind this request, therefore," he continued, "are to maintain this program during the full two years of the biennium 1951-53, to consolidate certain gains already made, and to implement a small number of recently established activities for which there is pressing demand in the area."

Budget is Classified

The increases in the budget request are divided into four classifications. They include: statutory increases, increases necessary to maintain and develop the present established program, revolving increases covered by additional University income, and increases necessary to strengthen service programs to Southern Illinois.

Increase in statutory appropriation requests amount to $6,888. This amount covers the employer contributions to the University Retirement System of Illinois.

The major portion of the increase is requested to pay the salaries of the existing staff, salaries of necessary new faculty, and current expenses of operation of the university. To support this portion of the University's program, an increase of $2,681,655 is being requested.

Among the University's varied activities are a number of auxiliary enterprises which have an income requiring state authorization before the money can be spent. S. I. U. officials estimate that the income of these agencies will increase $70,000 during the next two years.

The fourth classification includes four of the University's recently established programs which are primarily designed as service programs to Southern Illinois. The Vocational-Technical institute, the program of nursing education, accelerated work in horticulture, dairying and poultry raising, and community service constitute the programs in this classification. The request for increases in the appropriation to cover these projects amounts to $1,347,140.

"Although the request would appear to be quite liberal in comparison with the appropriation for the present biennium," President Morris declared, "it will, in effect, only allow for a conservative development of our program. Because of rising costs of operation," he added, "the appropriation will permit the University to hold the line on its well established program and allow for a healthy rate of development of the projects which have more recently been started."

Zone Regulations Asked

Other actions taken by the Board were the approval of a proposal to request the city council of Carbondale to establish zoning regulations within the immediate vicinity of the University's area of expansion. The request asked that no commercial establishments be allowed to locate in the area. The request, however, did not include rooming and boarding houses for students.

The Board pronounced the preliminary report from the bonding companies who are preparing a prospectus to the new self-liquidating girls dormitory as being favorable. The findings of the companies indicate that the dormitory can be built and liquidate itself in a period of 40 years or less with an occupancy of 90 percent of the total capacity. The cost of the building will not exceed the 1½ million dollars which was estimated. The dormitory will be located on the corner of University and Grand avenues.

Bids received on the University's building program were considered. On Nov. 9 bids were opened on five structures, including: library, life-science building, physical education unit of the training school, industrial education unit of the training school, and second unit of the service shops building.

Eighteen firms submitted bids amounting to one and one-half million dollars over the amount of money available for the construction of the buildings. Dr.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS CULTURE

The magic of the past is conjured in the journal of the Southern Illinois Historical society, edited by Draper of Mt. Vernon, archivist of the S. I. H. S. Published semi-annually, the booklet is a regionalized paper great interest to all who seek to know more about their native surroundings and the sources of their culture.

Meeting at such historic places as Murphysboro and Mt. Vernon, the Southern Illinois Historical society delves in such matters as the old Lewis-Clark campsite, the Trigg Memorial Ozark trail, the Hanes American collection, Indian Mounds in the Rising Sun area near Emma township, and Appalachian speechways carried west into the hill country of Southern Illinois, Tennessee, Kentucky and the Ozarks.

Here are some interesting samples of Elizabethan language carryovers and adjustments in the near south.

A native of the Ozarks says: "We-all ben a-havin' too . . . much comp'ny—th' ol' woman's jes hosted plum t' death." Other instances in which nouns or noun-phrases are used for verbs are: "Then he chisted out and chucked to hisself pierter than a rooster." (He threw out his chest.) "Uncle Abner . . . went busy-boddin' hisself here and yan in the crowd . . ." "She'd humble-pie the ole Deevil hisself." "It wont do fur we-uns ter resk the corn-crap an' gyarden truck with such a pack o' chill'n ter vittle es we-uns hev got at our house." "To feather into," meaning to shoot or attack, has been traced back to the use of the longbow in England. Adjectives, as well as nouns, may express action. For instance: "The smoke o' dawn hit were jist scarletin' red." And, "The sun undered behind the ridges."

Its articles ranging from the childhood recollections of Southern Illinois elders to the scholarly findings of college students at the University of Southern Illinois, the S. I. H. S. journal shows promise of adding much flavor to our appreciation of the past in a state which is just becoming aware of its own heritage and finding fascination in self-exploration.

Registration for the winter term will be held on Monday, Dec. 4.

The Alumni Director Speaks

By Wayne N. Mann

"The Alumni Association of S. I. U. is approaching a new dawn." These are words spoken by W. W. Vandever at the last Alumni Board meeting.

The reasons for making such a statement are as follows: First, the expansion of the University program under the administration of Dr. D. W. Morris is going to be reflected in the extension of alumni services for the association.

Second, the current board has a realistic point of view toward the problems facing the organization.

Third, techniques for building a better program have been provided the new director.

The immediate plans will involve the using of these techniques. First and foremost is the supporting of the student union building. The total culture of students must be considered in developing adequate leadership. The personality of the University usually revolves around such a program.

Second is the taking of community movies to combat the movement of young people from the area of Southern Illinois. In effect, the census has pointed out that the area is gradually dying. Some of the counties have lost as much as thirty-three per cent of their population in the last ten years. Compare this with the total national increase of fifteen per cent, and the loss in this area is drastic. To counteract this situation, the Alumni Association, in representing the University, must take immediate steps to arrest this trend. Sociological movies taken in these communities can do much to help point out the situation, thereby serving the area and rendering the University favorable publicity.

Third, the Alumni Association must interpret the aims and functions of the institution. The transmission, maintenance and advancement of our culture depends upon support of the Alumni Association. Such an organization can do much to assist the University program in these areas.

Fourth, another area is acquainting the people of Southern Illinois and the alumni of the school with the future plans of the University. A Magna Unit, which is in effect a small portable display featuring the utilization of "Black Light" to illustrate the proposed buildings of a projected campus plan for 1975, is being exhibited to aid in this program.

Five, the Alumni Association must be allowed to grow and another technique in this area is the publication of a quarterly magazine which will be sent to bona fide members of the association.

These are some of the immediate plans. Utilization of these ideas should be accomplished within the next year.

If we are to reach this new dawn in the Alumni Association it means 20,000 paid members in the Association. Strong alumni clubs in continued support of the institution will accomplish these ends.

ern, and some of them have sung in the chorus every year since the first presentation in 1946 under Dr. Kesnar's direction.

The small orchestra of about 35 pieces called for in the score of the "Messiah" will be composed of members of the Southern Illinois Symphony Orchestra which is also under the direction of Dr. Kesnar.

First performed in Dublin, Ireland, the "Messiah" is more than 200 years old. Written in 1741, it is Handel's best known Oratorio, and to this day it has retained all its freshness and religious spirit that has made it famous throughout the world.

Trustees Approve Operating Budget

Leo J. Brown, chairman of the Board, reported that the Board intends to start all of the buildings and to construct all that is possible with the money that is available. It will now be necessary, Dr. Brown said, for the Board, the University administration, the state division of Architecture and Engineering, and the state administration to decide what parts or phases of the programs will be built.

University officials met with officials of the Division of Architecture and Engineering to discuss the matter on Nov. 14.

Both the Carbondale and Harrisburg presentations will be open to the public without charge.

Shoe Leather Was A Commuter's Problem In 1915

Back in 1915, a Southern student lived in Boskeydell and daily made the pilgrimage to Southern. He walked and hitched rides on farm wagons and buggies, but he got here. In spite of all the hardships, he missed only two days of school in his four years of college.

Tall, white headed, and erectly slender, Wilbur H. Fishman recalled his days at Southern. He never attended a day of high school, but came direct to S.I.U. from grade school. A member of Southern's first manual training class in 1915, he recalled that his instructor was Eldon C. Peterson, the first faculty member to be hired to teach manual arts.

Mr. Fishman taught school one year in Nebraska and four years in Iowa before completing his bachelor's degree in agriculture at the University of Illinois in 1923.

After graduation, he went into business in Cherokee, Iowa, where he was married. He has two sons and a daughter.

One of his sons, Dr. Harlow J. Fishman, is a practicing physician in Holstein, Iowa. His other son, Paul A., is a fireman on the railroad at Sioux Falls, South Dakota. His daughter, Mrs. Floyd Ehrlich, is living in Cherokee where her husband is a railroad brakeman.

After spending several years in business, Mr. Fishman took his present position as postmaster of Cherokee in 1934. He likes civic and organizational work, and hasn't missed a meeting of the Rotary club in the past 13 years. Other jobs, such as head of the county chapter of the Infantile Paralysis Campaign fund keep him occupied and busy.

While attending the National Convention of Postmasters in St. Louis during the week of October 25, he visited the Southern campus in hopes of meeting old friends and classmates.

Mr. Fishman was impressed with Southern's progress and expansion, and he said that he had always been interested in Southern's welfare. He said that he would be looking forward to hearing from alumni who might be living near Cherokee.

Classes will be dismissed for the Christmas holidays beginning Saturday afternoon, December 16 and extending through January 1, 1951.

Egyptian, the student newspaper, is now being published semi-weekly. The size of the paper has been changed from regulation newspaper to tabloid size.

Alumni Club News

New Club Planned

Pat Patterson, faculty assistant in the Alumni Services, is now organizing Alumni Clubs in Jackson, Williamson, and Saline counties. They are expected to be working effectively by the first of the year.

Patterson states that he expects to have the entire state of Illinois organized by this time next year.

A Missouri Alumni Club is also being planned. At the present time, there are approximately 250 alumni living in Missouri.

Massac County Alums Attend Luncheon

The Massac county Alumni Club met in Metropolis at the Good Luck Cafe for a luncheon on Monday, November 20. Martin H. Schaeffer, president of the alumni club, called the meeting for the interim period between sessions of the Massac County Teachers' meeting.

Wayne Mann, director of Alumni Services, was guest speaker at the luncheon. The Magna-Unit was on display during the meeting.

Athletic Committee Adopts New Scheduling Motion

A motion that Southern not schedule games where teams members could not play because of "race, creed, nationality, or religion" has been unanimously approved by Southern's athletic committee, headed by Dr. William Tudor.

The motion was brought up following a recent game with Arkansas State in which four Negro team members did not play because Arkansas State officials advised against it because of the race feeling in that area.

Exact wording of the motion, which was made to include other items than race, was that the "committee support the director of athletics in not scheduling games with schools or in communities where any of the squad concerned would not be able to play because of race, creed, nationality, or religion, and that the personnel of the squad be determined solely by the coaches' opinions of skill as long as the player meets the eligibility prerequisites, including scholastic requirements."

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS RETROSPECT

BY PROF. E. G. LENTZ

SYNOPSIS: Southern Illinois Normal University was created by an act of the General Assembly on March 9, 1869, and the first main building was dedicated the same day that Dr. Robert Allyn was inaugurated as principal on July 1, 1874.

The doors of the University were officially opened on July 2 with 53 students registered for the four-week summer institute. Three divisions were established in the curriculum, a Model School, Preparatory School, and the Normal. These schools served the purpose of imparting the best teaching techniques until 1909 when a separate building was constructed for the exclusive use of the Normal School.

A military department was authorized by the board in 1878, with participation on a voluntary basis. The military department fostered a more complete physical education program which made progress after the completion in 1896 of the Old Science building which housed a complete gymnasium.

The science building is sometimes called the Altgeld building because of the distinctive style of architecture which characterized most of the state buildings of the Altgeld period.

Just as Southern was closing its first decade, a fire reduced the first main building to a mass of ruins on November 26, 1883. A vain attempt was made by the students and faculty to save the building and to salvage all that could be removed from the inferno.

A mass meeting of Carbondale citizens resulted in the offer of store rooms, offices, and churches for the accommodation of the school. Through the efforts of the people of Carbondale, $5,000 was raised to finance a temporary wooden structure which was completed by mid-January in spite of the bitter cold weather. The temporary structure was replaced by a new building, now known as Old Main, in 1887.

INSTALLMENT 8

The Teachers College --- Transition Years

Southern became a recognized State Teachers College when it was given that status in 1928 as a Class-A College by the American Association of Teachers Colleges. It was fully accredited as a degree-conferring teachers college by the North Central Association in 1931. With its degrees accepted without penalty by graduate schools the Normal School status was definitely ended.

After the observance of Southern's fiftieth anniversary in 1925 it became increasingly popular among students and faculty to refer to the school as the Southern Illinois Teachers College. In fact the Teachers College title was officially given to the three newer State Normals and a proposal to make it uniform for all five was made but never carried into effect.

The transition from Normal School to Teachers College involved a long progression of significant changes in curriculum, expanding facilities, increased service to the area, and in faculty personnel. It covered a period of approximately a quarter of a century, beginning with Dr. Parkinson's administration and carried to completion by President Shryock. The process was evolutionary, involving no abrupt break with the past.

In the case of Southern a clear-cut distinction between normal school and teachers college is difficult to define because of the gradual nature of the change. Both were distinctively teacher training institutions but differed chiefly in the matter of recognition.

The Normal stood apart, unique in a system of higher education. A vocational and professedly technical school, it was not recognized in the liberal arts tradition. It granted diplomas and certification, not degrees. Its graduates had difficulty in transfer of credits to the liberal arts and professional schools.

And yet the board of trustees had all the authority legally to grant degrees of whatever kind. At least in one instance it authorized the conferring of an honorary degree, that of Master of Arts, upon Professor Granville F. Foster on his retirement from the faculty in 1883. Earned baccalaureate degrees were subsequently conferred upon other members of the faculty.

The 45th General Assembly of Illinois (1907) gave specific authority to four of the State Normals to grant Bachelor of Education degrees. In conformity with this permissive authorization Southern added two years (24 credits) to its diploma requirements for any who might seek to qualify for a degree.

The demand for the so-called degree courses was slight and not until 1920 did it gather sufficient force to produce a class. The annual commencement of 1922 gave formal recognition for the first time to four degree graduates.

During the same decade of teacher college development Southern's relationship with the University of Illinois was improved. A limited recognition was given for credits earned at Southern amounting to not more than two years toward a baccalaureate degree. The credits accepted, however, were only the stronger liberal arts electives of Southern's curriculum but it accorded Southern the rank of a Junior College.

Southern was not any more liberal in its recognition of the numerous good high schools developing within its area. Belatedly it began the use of the University's list of accredited high schools and gave a limited admission credit of two or three years to high school graduates.

The celebration of Southern's first quarter century in the commencement week of 1899 was a fitting climax of the Normal School period. It marked the zenith, not the abrupt close, of that important pioneering era.

Appropriately enough the elaborate program of that celebration did more than glorify the past; it pointed to a brighter future. In that year the Class of 1900 issued an attractive year book — the institution's first — called The Sphinx and dedicated to President Daniel Baldwin Parkinson, Ph. D. The exuberant spirit of the school as well as of the class was well expressed in the slogan "Hurrah for Us."

Facetiously the enterprising Junior Class editorial board, headed by J. Oscar Marberry, assisted by the class president, T. B. F. Smith, called this historic year book "A stupendous compilation of facts, fiction, history and lies."

A Quarter Centennial Anniversary Souvenir was also published by the Alumni Association which had become a very active organization. The Souvenir history was a memorial to the alumni of Southern featuring brief tributes to former presidents and briefer records of the faculty. A summary of the institution's history before and after the fire and a detailed account of the quarter-centennial observance gave the Souvenir its chief value.

The school was now entering upon a more expansive era and a degree of maturity which meant that its defensive days were over. The case for the Normal school had been won in the court of public opinion and the political power which controlled the State. This was fully attested in the fact that three new Normal Schools, Charleston, Macomb, and DeKalb, now joined the pioneer schools to complete the State's system of teacher training.

Marked improvement in facilities as well as extended service of Southern characterized Dr. Parkinson's presidency (1897-1913). First among pressing needs was an adequate housing of the growing library which by 1909 had 15,000 volumes.

A new building, completed at a cost of $25,000 and dedicated June 6, 1904, was named Wheeler Library in honor of Judge S. P. Wheeler of Springfield, the president of the board who had much to do with securing the appropriation.

Later, a glass floor and steel stacks were added on a second floor level to increase the library's capacity. Space was also provided in the Wheeler Library for permanent, attractive rooms for the Zetetic and Socratic Literary Societies and for the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A.

Reference has already been made earlier in this sketch to the provision of a separate building for the Model School as an important step in the evolution of the training school. This was the second major achievement of the Parkinson administration when a building, exceptional for its time, was dedicated January 11, 1909, and named the Allyn Building in honor of Dr. Robert Allyn.

The training school now took a new direction as a highly organized unit of the Normal, preparation for which had been most capably carried forward by Superintendent Jacob Taylor Ellis, '94. Mr. Ellis was just at the threshold of a brilliant career when his death occurred in the summer of 1906.

Under his successors, Superintendents S. E. Harwood and C. H. Elliott, a staff of critic teachers were assigned to specialized duties, and a complete system of elementary, intermediate, grammar grade, and high school training was established.

The high school, which had been re-established at the beginning of President Parkinson's administration, was given an enhanced importance through the operation of the Lindley Scholarship Bill. This law, passed by the 44th General Assembly (1905), provided four years free instruction in the Normal Schools to one eighth grade graduate of each township. Since no pladage to teach was required of recipients of these scholarships, the Normals received an influx of students who were not held to the teacher training curriculum.

The Lindley law, therefore, had the immediate effect of stimulating the development of the high school within the Normals to provide the necessary non-professional academic training for these students. Thus the University high school became not merely a feature of the Model School but an important institution in itself.

In the decade 1900-1910 Southern greatly widened the scope of its contacts, services, and influence both within its area and throughout the State as a whole.

The annual meeting of the State Teachers Association at Springfield during the December holidays was the occasion for special conference meetings of representative members of the Normal School facilities. These Councils dealt with the problems and interests of teacher education common to the five State Normals. The State Superintendent, who was an ex-officio member of the board of trustees of each of the schools, gave direction to this unifying of purpose.

Particularly noteworthy was the leadership of Superintendents Alfred Bayliss and Francis G. Blair whose strong influence minimized the natural tendency toward rivalries. Probably no outstanding educator in Illinois did more than Mr. Blair to hasten the transition from the somewhat narrowly circumscribed Normal School to the broader status of State Teachers College.

A new state course of study for the common schools of Illinois which was the co-operative product of the State Superintendent's office and the Normal Schools did a great service in improving and standardizing instruction.

So important was it considered at Southern that special provision was made for it in the curriculum and courses were offered to prepare for its effective use. Faculty activity in the county teachers institutes was increased and a far more effective co-operation of county superintendents was brought about. No little credit for this improved situation was due to the increasing number of successful education leaders produced by the school's graduating classes.

On the initiative of Southern's faculty a School Council was organized with annual meetings on the campus to which principals and superintendents of the area were invited. An active interest in these conferences served well to identify the school more effectively as leader of the educational forces of Southern Illinois.

The Council was also quite legitimately — though incidentally — a means of recruitment of students and placement of graduates. The topic for discussion at its meeting in 1907 was, "Some Proposed School Legislation," a strikingly familiar subject as recent as yesterday among school people. After four or five years of profitable meetings the Council gave place to the annual conferences on the campus of county superintendents called by State Superintendent Blair.

The passing of the old Normal School is fully indicated by the creation of the new departments of Manual Training, Domestic Science, and Agriculture. In keeping with a new educational trend of enriching the common school curriculum beyond the basic tools of the "three R's" a demand must now be met by the Normal Schools for trained teachers with a wide diversity of skills.

So far as the elementary schools were concerned this enrichment of the course of study was not primarily vocational in aim, but it became distinctly so in the training of teachers to meet the new demands. Already vocational in the preparation of professional teachers, the Normal must now become vocational in a much more comprehensive sense.

The Manual Training department began quite simply at Southern in 1908 as a part of the elementary and high school program. Ample space was provided in a well-lighted room on the second floor of the Science building for classes in tool work and elementary construction taught by Miss Myra M. La Salle. The equipment, however, did not exceed a thousand dollars in value.

The next year Louis C. Petersen, a native of Denmark, joined the faculty as head of the new department and a full-scale vocational curriculum had its beginning. New equipment and shop facilities were added and the de-

Alexander Named Government Head By Board of Trustees

Dr. Orville Alexander, former director of the Alumni Services and a member of the government department since 1938, was appointed to the chairmanship of the government department at the regular monthly meeting of the University Board of Trustees on Nov. 13.

Dr. Alexander has given outstanding service to the University through his direction of the school's legislative programs. He has written a great amount of significant legislation affecting the University, including the act changing the status of the University, the bill changing Southern's name, and the bill creating the separate Board of Trustees.

He is now serving on the Commission to Study State Government, popularly known as the "Little Hoover Commission."

Permanent Appointments

In addition to Dr. Alexander's change of assignment, the Board approved four permanent appointments to the faculty, 23 term appointments, and 12 changes in rank or title.

The permanent appointments include: Jacob Olav Bach as instructor in education. His appointment will become effective January 29, 1951. At present, Mr. Bach is a teacher and liaison officer at the University of Michigan.

Gordon K. Butts was appointed instructor in education and assistant director of the Audio-Visual Aids Service. He received his master's degree and completed additional graduate work at Indiana University where he also served on the staff of the photographic laboratory.

Sophs Down Freshies For Honors In First Pancratium

Rabbits, turtles, and rare chariots graced Southern's campus as the freshmen and sophomores launched the first annual Pancratium Nov. 16 through 18.

Amid shouts of "down with the Sophs" and "beat the Frosh," the Pancratium began with a class rally and bonfire on the football field Thursday night. The climax of the evening was a doughnut eating contest, judged by S. I. U. President, Dr. D. W. Morris. The contest ended in a pie pitching free-for-all with combatants, Bob Coover, Sophomore president, and Earl Cox, Frosh prexy, both emerging well-draped with chocolate meringue pie.

The Pancratium, which stems from an old Greek and later Egyptian word meaning "complete contest," ended with the sophomores winning with 610 points to the freshman's 390.

Highlighting the events were the greased pole climb, obstacle run and chariot race. Altogether there were 20 exciting, and often hilarious, events and a total of 1,000 points.

The sophomores clinched the championship by winning the relays, chariot race, and scavenger hunt Saturday afternoon. Chuck Wildy, Darrell Brame, and George Casey won the relays, which included a sprint from the main gate to Anthony Hall, running backwards, and a sack race. Doug Shepherd and Louis Von Behren won the chariot race amid the shouts of the enthusiastic spectators, and the sophomore team more than doubled the frosh in points secured for the scavenger hunt.

Sophomore Joe Fedore opened Friday's events by being the first to climb the greased pole and bring down the ribbon. Later that day, sophomores George Kasey and Wayne Addison discovered the name of the mystery tune that had been playing backwards over the loudspeaker.

Freshman President, Earl Cox captured the rabbit that had been turned loose on the campus, and was awarded the rabbit as a prize for his fleetness. Don Cox tackled a squealing porky in the greased pig contest to put the freshmen ahead for the only time during the contest.

After Darrell Thompson and Jack Riggs won the horseshoe pitching contest for the class of '53, John Oberheu sped over a tough obstacle course to win 75 points for the sophomores and put them in a 250-200 lead.

Friday evening the sophs picked up another 145 points by winning the turtle race, ping pong, phering bee, chess, and checkers.

Saturday the sophomores went over the 500 mark with the throwing contest, relays, chariot race, and scavenger hunt. Undaunted however, the freshmen refused to admit defeat as Sam Hunter and Bill Nichols won the prize for the most unique chariot, a ten-man quad of huskies pulled the sophomores over the line in a tug-of-war, and the frosh took the barbershop quartet contest at the V/SC dance Saturday night.

Silver dollars and ribbons were awarded to all the winners. Sophomore president Bob Coover laid aside ten silver dollars with the announcement "Watch for another big event to be staged soon by the sophomore class. Coover was chairman and originator of the Pancratium. Vice-chairman was freshman prexy Earl Cox.

Vocational Institute To Offer Sales Training

A course to initiate sales people into better selling methods will be conducted in several Southern Illinois communities under the auspices of Southern's new Vocational-Technical Institute, according to Ernest D. Simon, director of the Institute.

Towns planning such courses with the University are West Frankfort, Carbondale, Du Quoin, and Marion. The course will be offered to new employees who decide to learn their duties toward their store and their customers, and also as a refresher course to those who wish to improve their selling ability.

New Student Health Plan Is Adopted

Under the new health plan which has been put into effect, emergency medical bills for students will be met by the University.

As much as $80 a school year can be obtained by a student from the fund depending somewhat on his financial needs. Each student pays $6.45 a year as part of his activity fee to obtain the benefits of the health plan which includes hospitalization and medical care benefits.

Dr. Anthony Raso, director of the student health service, says that the plan seems to be working very successfully.

CROSS COUNTRY TEAM WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

Coach Leland P. (Doc) Lingle's fall harriers reached the zenith of cross country endeavors November 11 at Mt. Pleasant, Michigan, when they ran off with first place in the conference cross country run. Phil Coleman, sensational runner on Lingle's squad, won first place in the event with a time of 20 minutes, 37 seconds for the 3½ mile course. Joe McLafferty and Captain Ray Palmer finished second and third respectively to sew up the victory for the Maroons.

McLafferty and Palmer ran neck and neck to the wire and finished with times of 21 and 21:03. The other runners were farther off the pace, with Jacques Osborne, last year's champ from Normal, finishing sixth. Roy Lambert from Centralia finished seventh for the Maroons and the fifth runner, Don Pick, ended up in 27th to conclude the SIU placements.

This is the second time in three years that the Maroons have placed a champion in the event. Joe McLafferty of Carbondale won the marathon in 1947, placing second this year.

For Phil Coleman, son of Dr. E. C. Coleman of the SIU English department, it was the peak he had been reaching toward all season. Coleman has won first place in every dual meet the Maroons have held this season, and already holds the cross country record at Southern. Coleman also set a record for the Washington university course in St. Louis earlier this fall.

Coleman, McLafferty, and Palmer are also track stars on Lingle's spring cinder path team. Coleman holds the two-mile record now, after he and Palmer battled it out last spring. The record changed hands two or three times before Coleman finally won out. McLafferty really came into his own last track season by breaking the half-mile record at Southern, winning the event the first time he ever ran the race. Later in the season, he set the record at 1:59.4 for the 880 yard event. He had previously held the record for the mile, setting this mark in his freshman year at SIU.

Lambert and Pick are newcomers to the Maroon cross country team, but already

Wrestling Season Under Way Soon

With the wrestling season only a few weeks away, the grunt and groaners under Bill Waller, newly-installed mat mentor at Southern, have been preparing for their first match of the season to take place sometime early in December.

Waller will have a firm nucleus around which to build his mat team this winter. Returning from last year's victorious crew are Jack Stoudt, Joe Fedora, Phil Bruno and Jim Veatch. However the team was hard hit when Roy Foley, a letterman in the 128 pound division, dropped out of school; and when Bob Whalen, who went to the finals in the AAU in New York last spring, went to the Army.

Don Riggs and Charlie Heinz, letterwinners in the heavier divisions, will be gone via graduation, and Harold Henson did not return to school this fall.

However, in Stoudt and Bruno, both former all-state champions from Chicago, Waller has two men who shouldn't lose a match this season. Fedora lost only three bouts last year, and Veatch finished strong in his freshman year to end up a tough customer. Fedora is a native of Granite City, while Veatch hails from Harrisburg.

have shown great promise.

Lambert won the intramural cross country run earlier this fall, entered by over 100 runners. Pick finished fifth in this race.

This is the finest cross country aggregation Lingle has coached in some time at Southern. Few times, if ever, have three runners from the same team finished 1-2-3 in the conference meet. This fact, added to the excellent times turned in, only adds to the accomplishments of Southern's cross country team.

O'Brien Reports For Marine Corps Duty

O'BRIEN

Coach William (Bill) O'Brien, football backfield coach and "B" team basketball coach, has received his notice to report for active duty December 11 with the United States Marine Corps. O'Brien, a lieutenant in the corps during World War II, will report back as a captain.

He is to take his physical prior to his re-induction, and if he passes will report for duty at Camp Lejeune, North Carolina. O'Brien stated in an interview that his old company has been in combat training since September, but other than that he does not know what he will be doing.

The recall of O'Brien was the second blow to the coaching staff at Southern. Previously this year, Russ Bush, the wrestling and tennis mentor, was recalled to the Air Corps. O'Brien, a colorful member of the athletic department, was in his third year of coaching at SIU. Previous to assuming his coaching duties, the stocky Irishman was an outstanding football and basketball player at Southern.

According to his coach, Glenn (Abe) Martin, and according to the record books, O'Brien was one of the finest halfbacks ever to perform for Southern. He paced the teams of '40, '41, and '42 before entering the service in '43. Upon his return, he served as assistant football, basketball, and baseball coach at Carbondale Community high school before assuming his coaching duties at SIU.

O'Brien stated only that he, "wanted to leave Southern," and that he had, "enjoyed this year more than any other at the University." He had already received his Master's degree in physical education, and was working toward a Ph. D. at the University of Indiana.

Cage Showing To Depend On Millikin

By Jim Kahmann

Tom Millikin, captain of the SIU Maroon basketball team, and last year's IAAC most valuable player, was injured during the first week of November practice, when he twisted his right knee after rebounding. As of now, Millikin's knee has been coming around slowly, but it is the hope of mentor Lynn Holder that Millikin will be able to go against Southeastern Louisiana December 2 in Carbondale.

The rest of the crew, however, are in tip-top shape, and have improved vastly during the past week of practice. Men who look like starters include Bill Garrett, flashy sharpshooter from Fairfield; Jerry Halopeter, transfer student from Oklahoma A. & M.; Chuck Thate, 6'7" center from Chicago; Dave Davis, another member of the Pinckneyville champs of 1948; and either Ernie Bezarth, a two-year letterman from Waltonville, or Shirlean Eckert, sophomore from Herrin, who is a great team man.

While Holder's views are at the present optimistic, he realizes that his present crew is quite a different bunch of cagers than last year's aggregation which won 24 games and lost six. Gone are seniors Bob Colborn, Joe T. Ches, Bob Kissack, Jack Long, and Captain Charlie Goss. And to make matters worse, Frank (Pud) Gladson, the ball-handling wizzard from Pinckneyville, got married last summer and dropped out of school. Gladson's ball-handling will be hard to replace, but Holder has a few men who look as though they may come around in short time.

Bob (Nick) N'holaus, the ace high-jumper and all-around athlete from Centralia, looks as if he has the drive and the go to replace Gladson, but needs polish here and there. Maynard Eaves is a good ball handler, and the freshman East St. Louisian may play some ball this season. Jack Renfro, last year's Collinsville high school star, is a good ball handler, but hasn't been able to hit with any consistency this fall. But all these men are freshmen, and will undoubtedly improve as the season progresses.

In any event, the appearance of Millikin in the line-up this fall makes quite a difference in the ball club's showing. Millikin's ability to hit from any place on the floor, in any position, and with a large variety of shots, makes him the real difference in the Maroons' showing. Should he be able to go full blast all season, the local boys will probably come close to their 1950 record. Should his injury not respond quickly to treatment, the story may be quite different.

Advance reports have it that all the conference foes will be as rough or rougher than last year, when things weren't exactly easy. Eastern, the conference hamps last year, have four of their first five back, including IAAC top scorer, Tom Katsimpolis. Don Glover, Don Wilson, and Co. are all back and the Panthers have 10 or more veterans from which to pick their fifth man. In addition, Normal, Western, and Northern will all be better than last year.

And so, as the Maroons prepare to embark on another basketball season, it is Holder's hope that the new men will improve in a style which will soon give top as-

Harold Call, the big offensive gun for the Maroon football team this season, fractured his left ankle in the Michigan Normal game November 10 in McAndrew Stadium. Call, the team's left half-back, scored twice against Michigan Normal and set up two other tallies to lead the Maroons to a spectacular, 44-13 victory. The Pana flash had chalked up 248 yards before being injured early in the third quarter. His ankle fracture, however, was pronounced "not too serious," and he is expected to be able to go full blast next season. He scored eight touchdowns this year for a total of 48 points.

Call Elected Most Valuable Player As Grid Season Ends

With their 25-7 loss to the Western State Leathernecks Saturday, Nov. 18, the Southern Illinois University Maroons dropped the curtain on another football season. The men of Bill Waller ended the 1950 campaign with a record of 3 wins, 1 tie, and 5 losses.

Last Saturday the local gridders were playing without the services of their star Harold Call. Call missed the last contest due to an ankle fracture suffered in the Michigan Normal contest the previous week. However, he was named, by player elections, the Most Valuable player of the 1950 season. During the course of the season, Call scored 48 points with 8 touchdowns, and was the offensive star of the Waller-coached crew.

The Maroons gave Western a good ball game the first half, but fell off with their offensive punch during the final quarters, and lost by a three-touchdown margin after holding the Leathernecks to a 7-7 tie at halftime. A Fred Brenzel to John Vanderplum pass resulted in the Maroons lone tally. Chuck Oyler kicked the extra point.

After getting off to a good start with a 13-7 win over Hanover College, the Maroons dropped a 10-0 decision to the Cape Girardeau Indians. However, the Southern boys followed up with a convincing, 20-0 victory over Indiana State. The Southern line played one of its outstanding games of the year in this contest, and held the State eleven to 3 first downs.

Then, in their first conference tilt, the Maroons were polished off, 44-20 by Northern State. Bob Heimerdinger, who at the present time leads the nation in pass completions, threw five touchdown passes in this contest. The Maroons' highlight came in the third quarter when Harold Call sprinted through the entire Northern team for 100 yards and a touchdown. He also scored another touchdown in this contest. Reaching their peak, Waller's men then played one of their best games of the year on their Homecoming, holding IAC champs Illinois Normal to a 14-14 tie. However, Arkansas State trounced the Maroons, 46-0 on the next weekend.

Eastern State College followed with a 21-7 win over the local men in another conference tilt. Call scored the lone tally here for his sixth tally of the season.

Then on Nov. 10, in the first night game in the history of SIU football, the Maroons came up with their outstanding game of the year. Paced by the rampaging Call, they overpowered Michigan Normal, 44-13 on a cold, freezing night. Call scored two tallies and set up two others before retiring in the third quarter with a fractured right ankle.

They then lost the finale to Western 27-7 to close the season with a conference record of 1 tie and 3 losses.

However, it is the general feeling on the Southern campus that were it not for the unusually large number of injuries on the squad this year the SIU showing would have been much better. Waller's two best fullbacks, Bob Ems and Don Simpson, were injured during the first week of practice. Ems saw limited action thereafter but Simpson didn't don a pad for the remainder of the campaign. Injuries later on in the season to Frank (Moose) Kraus, Bill Wangelin, Herb Cummins, Lou Bobka, Bob Brown, Warren Littleford, Gene Propes, and of course Harold Call all added to Waller's woes.

With a spirited crew back for next year, the Maroons are surely looking toward a good season, barring serious intervention from Uncle Sam.

Seventy-Five Years

partment became increasingly popular. During Mr. Petersen's long tenure occurred the evolution of the industrial arts far beyond the requirements of teacher training in their vocational implications.

Domestic Science, or Household Arts as the department was called, followed much the same course of development as Manual Training. The courses offered, however, were from the beginning more advanced.

Miss Grace E. Jones was called to the faculty in 1910 to organize and develop a department which would meet the need for trained teachers of Domestic Science; Miss Lucy K. Woody was made her assistant in 1912.

On Miss Jones' retirement in 1929, Miss Woody became head of this increasingly important department and continued as its builder until 1948. From modest beginnings has evolved a major vocational department whose training motivation, or even the service transcends its teacher training of technicians; it serves the practical ends of homemaking.

The biological science curriculum underwent a complete revision when John P. Gilbert '96 became head of the department in 1911. Among other changes was the inclusion of courses in agriculture which were taught by R. E. Muckelroy '03, an associate in the department.

The teaching of elementary agriculture in the rural schools and also in township high schools had been stimulated through the influence of the State Farmers Institute in which Mr. Gilbert was a dynamic leader.

The need at Southern was a strong vocational department of agriculture. Mr. Muckelroy became the organizer and head of this new department in 1913 with H. B. Piper as his associate.

In the meantime the institution's state farm of approximately 110 acres had been acquired and now became a demonstration farm for the area as well as for students in the department. It is doubtful if any single service has been of greater value to the area than this pioneering work of Mr. Muckelroy.

An expanding athletic program called for more than gymnasium facilities. After the lifting of the faculty ban upon football in 1897 college sports grew in popular favor at Southern, thus giving rise to the need for playing fields.

The limited campus could not meet that need; but an eleven-acre tract east of the present Lincoln School campus, which was part of the original donation of Carbondale toward securing the location of the Normal, was now utilized as an athletic field. It was put in shape and a grandstand built having a seating capacity of 1000.

The field, though too remote from the center of student life, proved adequate for all athletic contests and other open air assemblies for a number of years. It was named Bayliss Field in recognition of the high esteem in which State Superintendent Alfred Bayliss was held by faculty and students as a friend of the school.

It was given to Dr. Parkinson to bring his highly successful presidency to a close with the attainment of a project he had long very much desired, the better housing of students. Much too long this first among musts had waited — and still waits — the reluctant generosity of the state. An increasing student enrollment had presented a very real housing problem which has grown with the years.

The boys enrolled at Southern have always out-numbered the girls, but very properly first consideration was given to the girls in this beginning of dormitory facilities. Inexplicable opposition in the General Assembly defeated the first attempts to secure appropriation for a Woman's Building. The bill finally passed and was signed by Governor Deen in 1911, but not until the requested $100,000 was reduced to $75,000.

Delays in construction deferred the opening of the dormitory until October, 1913, when its dedication was made the occasion of the formal inauguration of a new president, Henry William Shryock. It was an historic occasion which marked the ushering in of a new era for Southern.

Anthony Hall, in honor of Susan B. Anthony, famous crusader for women's rights, was the appropriate name bestowed upon this modern dormitory for women. It was immediately taxed to its capacity and has always had a waiting list. A new center of student life was now provided under the best of conditions. Moreover, the dining and reception facilities of this beautiful building have been constantly drawn upon when Southern has been host to its numerous guests.

Dr. Parkinson piloted Southern through sixteen difficult years of transition. An old order was passing, a new was being born. As one of the original faculty of eight he was a "founding father." He had been a teacher of physical science, secretary of the faculty, registrar and vice-president before he received his merited promotion to the presidency in 1897.

Conservatively cautious in administrative policy, he knew the best of the old Normal system and yet had full understanding of the newer trends. Not too slow in discarding the outgrown he was also not too quick to seize upon the novelty of change. Dr. Parkinson was not the aggressive fighter for causes. He was endowed in high degree with the wisdom of patience which made him a prince of diplomats in all his relations with the faculty, students, and public.
